Description

Elegant pair of walnut two-part bookcase-cupboards, originally from a Venetian villa where they furnished a formal reception room. Dating from the early 19th century, they stand out for their impressive size and the refined balance between classical simplicity and decorative richness. Each piece consists of two sections: Upper section with two glazed doors and internal shelves; Lower section with four paneled doors and spacious compartments. The design is clean and restrained, enhanced by fine details: the upper cornice is delicately carved with foliate motifs, and the legs are slightly curved, adding elegance and lightness to the structure. The walnut wood, beautifully grained, is finely worked--a sign of high-quality craftsmanship, likely Venetian or Paduan. Dimensions (each
