Produced in 1973, this work entitled Fiori (The Flowers) combines the finesse of etching with the pictorial density of aquatint to compose an image that is both structured and poetic. The composition combines stylized floral abstraction, plays on textures and subtle contrasts in a monochrome palette with powerful accents. A rare and elegant work, which reflects all the plastic rigor and graphic sensitivity of the artist. The print is signed in pencil lower right, titled and dated in the center. On the back, a period exhibition label attests to its presentation at the 5th Biennale of Contemporary Incision in
