Description

Oil painting on canvas, 1750 (Approx.) The style and subject of the painting recall the typical landscape painting of the eighteenth century, with particular attention to the idealized representation of nature and scenes of everyday life. The composition, with the wooden bridge, the figures in popular clothes and the presence of rural buildings in the background, is consistent with the production of the Venetian school in the context of Francesco Zuccarelli. The painting is presented with an old relining. With beautiful colors it gives warmth and charm of the ancient, the measurements are 106 x 58 cm
