of the 1920s. One of his best-known works, a bronze monument (1919) to the Italian nationalist and irredentist Guglielmo Oberdan, is located in the square of the same name in Florence. In 1935, Ugo Cipriani emigrated to France to escape Mussolini's fascist regime. He lived in Paris as a political refugee and continued to create there until his death in 1960. A very prolific sculptor in France, certain clues revealed by his daughter Lydia and his son Gabriel suggest that he used pseudonyms like Menneville and Uriano. Sold with Invoice and Certificate. Bronze visible at our gallery in L'Isle sur la Sorgue (France), on weekends. Free shipping for France. And on estimate for abroad
