Description

A late Victorian masterpiece, this 18K (750?) yellow gold cluster ring adopts a slender navette silhouette typical of the Aesthetic Movement of the 1880s-1890s. At its heart, a hand-cut rose-cut diamond (? 0.25 ct) is surrounded by six pure-brilliant old-mine diamonds, three deep blue sapphires, three vivid emeralds, and two velvety rubies. The finely chiseled scrolled openwork gallery and delicate milgrain accentuate the fine craftsmanship. The divided band shoulders, each set with a rose-cut diamond, harmoniously extend the central motif. Combining gem varieties, old-cuts, and Victorian craftsmanship, this piece offers a presence that is both historic and decidedly refined. Technical sheet Metal: 18K (750?) yellow gold Center stone: Rose-cut diamond, approx. 0.25 ct Accents: 6 × old mine
