A set of six green opaline plates, with painted decoration of natural flowers, scrolls, branches and hummingbirds, enhanced by gold leaf gilded surfaces, in the style of Jean-François Robert. Slight wear to the gilding. MORE PICTURES
Belonging to a family of porcelain painters at the Manufacture de Sèvres, Jean-François Robert perfected the technique of crystal painting. On March 6, 1838, he obtained a patent for his processes for coloring crystals in vitrified colors. From 1837 to 1855, Jean-François Robert ran the main workshop for decoration on opal half-crystal, until 1843. Then, he became the official decorator for the house of Launay, Hautin & Compagnie. Remarkable for their execution and richness of subject matter, the decorations of Robert's workshop feature
