Description

Superb Provençal Verriot in walnut transition Louis XV Louis XVI. A rare and charming piece of furniture that has become rare on the market. It is a Provençal Verriot in walnut of high quality of manufacture, one can even speak of exceptional workmanship. It opens on the front by a glazed door in gendarme hat with four original panes in the manner of a small window and releasing worked shelves and a low drawer. It has retained its original bubble panes. It has a large cornice in gendarme hat finely molded and very fat in design. This cornice is removable. Below the crosspiece is carved with a flowered basket and foliage scrolls. The particularity of this crosspiece is the exceptional quality of carving with a basket of fruit largely protruding. The drawer as well as the low crosspiece are carved with quivers of acanthus leaves and floral motifs as well as a bouquet of roses in the center. The uprights are very fat and also carved with scraps floral all along, wheat germs above the feet and end with small shell feet or snail feet resting on small hooves. Above the shells we find stylized wheat germs. The sides are flat or dabs with beautiful walnut panels. The backs are original. Superb blond walnut patina, a blond and warm waxed patina. No attack of wood-eating insects to report but a preventive treatment was carried out in the workshop. A charming piece of furniture to put down or hang up. Originally this type of furniture was intended to receive beautiful glasses. Currently, it can be easily diverted into a collection display piece or a small library, etc... A Verriot from Nîmes or Arles from the beginning of the 19th century of exceptional quality.
