Description

Pair of elements with children's faces and dolphin bodies. Originally the two elements, which are carved on two sides, were to belong to a woodwork? a staircase banister? a piece of furniture? They are treated in the spirit of the Renaissance and executed in the 19th century. They can be reintegrated into a decor or even form the base of a low table. Good general condition, beautiful carving work, the wood has acquired a beautiful patina. Some traces of wood-eating without consequence on the solidity. Delivery at the buyer's expense (consequent weight)
