Description

Mamen Gil's mixed media work on wood presents a powerful abstract meditation on the elemental meeting of light and land. A radiant sphere in molten orange anchors the composition, suggesting a blazing sun emerging or receding against a raw, richly layered surface of ochre, crimson, and cobalt blue. The highly textured application evokes geological strata or weathered earth, while bursts of vibrant pigment and crackled depth give the piece a visceral, tactile presence. Gil's expressive brushwork and earthy materials emphasize process and materiality, grounding the work in the traditions of Arte Povera and lyrical abstraction. The visual weight of the composition is masterfully balanced--the luminous orb draws the eye upward, while rough impasto grounds it in a sense of place that feels
