Description

Elegant and powerful, Ptah is an emblematic work by Janou Serée, a French sculptor renowned for her work with matter and form. Carved directly from a block of French black marble, this sculpture embodies the balance between soft lines and rigorous volumes. The top of the piece, with its polished, almost liquid curves, subtly contrasts with the base structured in rigid strata, evoking both geological formation and ancient architecture. This dialogue between the organic and the constructed recalls the symbolic legacy of the Egyptian god Ptah, patron saint of artisans, whose name the work here takes. The artist, trained in monumental sculpture, develops a sober but powerful aesthetic, where every trace of the creative gesture is assumed. Presented on a glossy black base, this piece integrates powerfully
