Description

19th century brooch depicting a scene in the form of a miniature, mounted on silver and vermeil (swan hallmark). The bucolic setting of the scene is highlighted by branches and flowers all around the brooch, abundantly punctuated with fine pearls. The miniature is protected by a glass, belonging to a box enhanced with chiseled vermeil (gold-plated silver). The scene represents a young woman lying down, in the presence of Cupid who seems to be looking for an arrow to shoot with his bow in order to touch the young woman's heart. Gross weight: 6.85 g Condition: imperceptible micro-scratches on the metal, characteristic oxidation of the silver, patina of the paint Condition: imperceptible micro-scratches on the metal, characteristic natural inclusions in the rubies, natural inclusions in the diamonds not
