actors), Shunga (erotic paintings), Landscapes (fkei-ga) and "famous views" (meisho-e) and also fauna and flora. ** Genji: The Tale of Genji (Genji monogatari, or Tale of Genji, or Romance of Genji) is a work considered a major work of Japanese literature of the 11th century, attributed to Murasaki Shikibu. The Tale of Genji, which presents itself as a true story (monogatari), tells the life of one of these imperial princes, of extraordinary beauty, an accomplished poet and charmer of women. The Tale of Genji was a favorite theme in Japanese painting, notably in the yamato-e movement of the Heian period, the panel painting of the Tosa school or ukiyo-e prints.
