Description

This beautiful and decorative chest of three drawers and gray breccia marble with ressaults is a neat provincial piece of furniture from the 18th century in the Louis XVI style. An elegant piece of furniture of all purity by the choice of the remarkable red mahogany with tight satin fiber. With a beautiful device, this pretty piece of furniture which deserves to be seen is manufactured with care and the proportion as well as the assembly of high quality. An exceptional piece of furniture which will flatter your interior with elegance and refinement. By its poplar drawers, we can locate this piece of furniture in a region like the Gers, because the dressing and the quality of the mahogany can be that of a port wood like Bordeaux. A presence as beautiful as a Riesner piece of furniture, from which it draws all its elegance... The sculpted border friezes framing the upper drawer, the two generous drawers below, the belt edged in the lower part with a refined little whisker-like stroke, the fluted sheathed legs with bronze sabots with a reminder of the small rosette in the upper part, the pretty returns on the sides and the chiseled bronze cladding of the lock entries and the high-quality oval swinging handles... In short, a high-quality piece
