Margherita Volò Caffi in his workshop. In her works, the painter shows clear similarities with the painting of her brothers, with Margherita in particular, but also specific and autonomous characteristics. Francesca's painting is characterised by a high quality of execution, for the rendering of flowers through an intense and heartfelt naturalism, with a prevalence of acidulous and cold colours brightened by touches of deep red and illuminated by the skilful use of white. Like Margherita, Francesca arranges flowers with great compositional freedom in an embossed vase whose shimmering colours (pink, white and red are favoured) emerge from the dark background. The material, animated by a vivid light, acquires a particular softness, delicate and virtuosic in the definition of the reflections of the vase and in the transparencies of the petals.
