Description

Superb 19th century bronze statue titled "The Kiss", signed by Auguste Moreau, a member of the famous French sculptor family. This delicate work depicts a young winged cherub, his hands tenderly placed on his lips, in a gesture of innocence and affection, perfectly embodying the theme of the kiss. Crafted with great attention to detail and in the romantic style typical of the Belle Époque, this sculpture seduces with the finesse of its features, the delicacy of the curly hair and the elegant draping around the body. The dark brown patina brings depth and nobility to the whole. The cherub is placed on a round bronze base, adding a touch of classical refinement and visual stability.
