Description

Large Chattelraut folding knife with steel blade, the back worked in false counter edge and bearing the Collin mark with a crowned B. Brass structure with nickel silver bolster and spring on the back with blade release. Also on the back is a corkscrew, the whole ending with a nickel silver fishtail bolster. Two deer antler plates riveted in several places. On one plate, inlay of a nickel silver plate in banderolle. 19th century. This type of knife is not very common in this configuration and size, it was for a long time subject to the use of its owners and retains some stigmas which give it all its charm. Very good blade locking. Closed length 17.4 cm Open length 31.4 cm Blade length 14.1 cm
