Description

Hamadan rug, Northwest Persia, circa 1950-1980. (Cotton warp and weft, wool pile). Runner rug with a repeating boteh design across the entire field. It is said that the original Persian droplet motif--the boteh or buta--was a representation of a floral spray combined with a cypress tree, a symbol of life and eternity. The seed-like shape is also believed to represent fertility and has ties to Hinduism. Size : 278 x 100 cm Condition : Good
