

Flax Breaker

250 EUR

Period : 18th century

Condition : Bon état

Material : Solid wood

Length : 100 cm

Width : 48 cm

Height : 58 cm

Description

Traditional wooden tool with hand-forged metal used to break the tough outer covering of flax stalks to separate the valuable inner fibers, which can then be made into linen or rope. The central right 'figure' is the upper jaw of the frenulum which resembles tribal art. Handcrafted tool from the late 18th or early 19th century. Decorative piece of equipment.

Dealer

Vintitch

Modern furniture

Mobile : +32478803943

Groenstraat 29

Opwijk 1745