

Pair Of 19th Century German Porcelain Sweetmeat Figures, Attributed To Volkstedt

500 EUR

Period : 19th century

Condition : Parfait état

Material : Porcelain

Description

Delicately modeled pair of German porcelain sweetmeat figures, attributed to the Volkstedt manufactory, Thuringia, c.1880. Each figure represents a young girl standing with one foot raised upon a reticulated basket, holding a bird in her hand and wearing a dotted classical-style tunic. The rococo-style scroll bases are molded and painted in pastel tones.

On the bases an underglaze blue crossed-swords mark typically used by Thuringian porcelain factories emulating the well-known crossed-swords mark of Meissen in the 19th century.

A beautifully preserved pair, with no damage or restoration. One small firing crack near the base, a typical result of kiln tension during production.

Notably, all fragile applied details -- including flowers and birds - are completely intact, which is particularly rare in figures of this type. One figure has a slight gold brush mark on the hand, likely from original decoration.

Measurements:

Left-arm figure: Height 19.5 cm, Width 13 cm, Depth 10 cm, Weight 374 g

Right-arm figure: Height 19 cm, Width 13 cm, Depth 10 cm, Weight 367 g

A rare and decorative pair, offering high artistic and historical appeal for collectors of German porcelain and Meissen-style revival pieces.
