Description

Japanese porcelain vase called Imari, from the end of the 18th century or the beginning of the 19th century, decorated with pagodas and small flowers in cartouches. In this very dense decoration there is a crack which starts in the neck and continues in the rounded part. It is difficult to see in the last 4 photos because the decoration is dense. It does not affect the solidity because the porcelain is thick. Delivery costs by Colissimo with tracking: 40 euros
