Description

Presented in its beautiful carved giltwood frame with palmettes, barret of the time, this remarkable oil on wood (oak) is well animated with ships and sailing boats of all kinds on a stormy sea, with an inhabited rocky point with a lighthouse. Executed with great finesse, this Work signed lower right Cordet 1833, is a painting teeming with details and very well executed, both the atmosphere and the touch; the successful luminosity offers us a very well mastered Work and a neat and decorative painting from the first half of the 19th century (Louis Philippe). A beautiful presence animates this painting executed with talent, for a beautiful result. Sincere and marking its time, this charming marine would gladly adorn the walls of your living room
