Description

Hand-carved plaster wall console, Italy, 19th century Elegant church console in stuccoed plaster, finely carved with three winged cherub heads treated in relief. Italian work of the period, probably intended to adorn a chapel or a liturgical space. This beautiful decorative element, both spiritual and theatrical, seduces decorators today with its expressiveness and sculptural character, ideal for a singular wall setting. Antique object in its original condition, with some chips and cracks compatible with age, not altering its stability or its decorative power. The front bears the inscription "Nardi", accompanied by the date 1847. Harmonious dimensions, offering a perfect balance: neither too imposing nor too discreet, this piece fits easily into the most refined interiors. Measurements 13.78 inches height,
