Modern soapstone sculpture - Female nude sculpted in the material - 37 cm Elegant modern sculpture carved in soapstone in brown and olive green tones, representing a stylized and sensual female nude from the back, whose form subtly emerges from the raw material. The composition plays on the contrast between the polished organic of the body and the mineral roughness of the unworked stone, in a balance as sensual as it is sculptural. The artist exploits the natural texture of the stone to create a dialogue between form and formlessness, contained eroticism and mineral strength. This work is part of a resolutely contemporary approach, at the crossroads of figurative sculpture and abstract mineral art. A very beautiful work of volume and surface, in the spirit of modern organic sculptures of the 20th
