Description

Pair of beautiful covered vases in very finely carved alabaster. "Grand Tour" model treated in the spirit of the return to Antiquity; the body in the shape of an amphora on a circular foot decorated with a frieze of laurel leaves, openwork neck with a gaudroned edge and high "Greek-style" side handles engraved with a geometric reserve decoration. One of the two faces is decorated with a floral composition in a central cartouche. These beautiful vases have retained their original lids and the neck is decorated with an openwork "Greek-style" frieze, which could suggest that they could possibly be used to contain and diffuse scented foliage or petals, a "potpourri" process still very fashionable at that time. Superb quality of execution and good general condition, note a small alabaster
