Description

Antique silver and coral bracelet - 19th century
Description: Superb 19th century bracelet, made of worked silver (foreign hallmarks visible, to be analyzed for precise determination of the origin). This jewel is adorned with natural coral cabochons of a deep red, typical of ancient Mediterranean jewelry (probably coral from the Mediterranean or Torre del Greco). The center of the bracelet features a medallion adorned with a cameo or face carved in coral, framed by a rich composition of small beads and delicate goldsmith elements. The side links are finely decorated with floral and filigree motifs, each set with a coral cabochon. Clasp: Functional, ratchet, original. Metal: Silver (unidentified foreign hallmark visible on the clasp). Approximate length: 18cm Width of the central medallion:
