Description

This is probably, according to the expertise of Mrs. Surya Rutten, the Goddess PARVATI Tamil Nadu Basalt Sculpture 13/15 century CHOLAS period Hand-carved in basalt or granite, this sculpture from a Franco-British estate was purchased about sixty years ago and has remained in the family collection. Carved in basalt or granite, very hard stones, it probably comes from a temple in Tamil Nadu, at the time when this was done. It is not in the round. All transparency is brought to the origin of the work. Practitioners have the custom of caressing the breasts of the goddess, so it presents a very beautiful softness of stone.
