Description

Stone shield coat of arms carved, with the representation of the Templar 'cross pattée' and underneath the image of a Castle, between the symbols of an axe, a torch and the third eye, protective of the Cross of the Holy Order and the Castle. The Coat of Arms was to be displayed as a keystone in the entrance portal of a now destroyed Templar Castle. Museum object of great charm and esoteric charisma, dating between the 11th and 12th centuries. This Coat of Arms will be published in the text 'The Templars in Sicily' edited by the Terza Esperide Cultural Association of Palermo.
