Description

Large and beautiful sculpture of a deer with majestic antlers and 9 horns, stretching its neck to reach and nibble the bark of a dead tree branch. This is a bronze proof with a modern cast medal patina (20th century), inspired by the same subject treated by Pierre-Jules Mêne, a renowned 19th century artist who was a master in the execution of animal sculptures particularly in vogue under the Second Empire, like the works of Antoine-Louis Barye, or Auguste Caïn. Piece in perfect condition, weighing 8 kilograms.
