the Charente in all weathers and in different seasons. We find more than ten panels of the same format, where the group of trees can be seen regularly, at the bottom left of our composition. On several tables we can distinguish a bridge further downstream, that of Châtenay, a former town now attached to Cognac in Charente. That same year, Cabié presented at the Salon de Paris, among others, a view of the Charente in Châtenay. Very autumnal, this panel with orange hues and a pinkish sky, is the image of the artist's work throughout his career, with the sole aim of representing reality.Do not hesitate to ask us for the iconography of the other paintings representing this place.We are looking for any work or any information relating to the artist to complete his biography as well as a catalog raisonné during the work.
