Description
-------------

Important bronze group with brown patina , entitled "Pro Patria" , representing "Vercingetorix" , King of the Gauls , his hand on his son's shoulder , by the sculptor Emile-Louis Laporte (1858-1907) .The two characters remain faithful to the classical representation of the hero . They appear standing , in a victorious pose , their fixed gazes reflect their determination and their bravery . Their muscles are prominent , they are armed with a spear , an axe and a sword . Vercingetorix has abundant hair , a drooping moustache , soft and tight-fitting medieval-style breeches , and his famous winged helmet . Bronze group signed "E.LAPORTE" on the richly chiseled rectangular terrace . Bronze dated "84" and stamped "6050" . Old edition sculpture , second period Part of the 19th century . Very
