Description

Exceptional and very rare bronze rocaille style clock created by the sculptor and ornamentalist Léon Messagé (1841 - 1901). He is known for his collaboration with François Linke (1855 - 1946) for the Universal Exhibition which took place in Paris in 1900. Thanks to their alliance ; Léon Messagé had a huge success at the end of the 19th century. An identical clock is published in the book by François Linke written and published by Christopher Payne; page 93. Height of the clock = 75.5 cm A real collector's item and very rare on the art market !
