Description

There are three pot-bellied vases with hats decorated with an openwork fretel representing a dog and two concave vases with slightly flared necks. The vases present a landscape framed by scrolls and laurel palms, in relief, on the front part. The back part soberly presents a flower and stylized foliage. We see in cartouches a scene with two men carrying a heavy bunch of grapes and a hunting scene in front of a lake. Early 18th century. Useful (accidents during firing)
