Description

Aubusson rugs come from a long weaving tradition in France, more precisely in the town of Aubusson (Nouvelle-Aquitaine region). Renowned since the 15th century, these rugs are today synonymous with luxury, elegance, and refinement. Inspired by classical French styles (Louis XV, Louis XVI, Rococo, Neoclassical), they are often floral, with central medallions, garlands, arabesques, or pastoral scenes. The Aubusson factory has been renowned for the excellence of its production since the 17th century, for French rugs and tapestries. First Royal, Imperial, and then National, it supplied official palaces and prominent aristocratic families. "Petit Point" Technique : "Petit point" refers to a very fine embroidery technique, executed by hand, stitch by stitch, often on a
