Description

Benjamin RABIER (1864 - 1939), French comic book author
Three fables
