Description

An iconic piece of American modernism, this sleek boat-shaped dining table was designed by Florence Knoll for Knoll Associates in the 1950s. Showcasing Knoll's signature balance of simplicity and sophistication, this rare, collector-coveted table is a striking example of mid-century modern design. Crafted with a richly grained walnut top, the table features an elegant boat shape--wider at the center and tapering at the ends. Its architectural lines are enhanced by chrome legs, offering both visual appeal and structural strength. The minimalist profile reflects Knoll's architectural training and the influence of the Bauhaus on her work, emphasizing function, form, and refined materials. This table comfortably seats eight to ten and serves as an ideal centerpiece for a modern dining room, loft,
