Description

This painting depicts a peaceful view of the Seine in Paris, dominated by the Pont d'Iéna, with the silhouette of the Palais du Trocadéro (before its demolition in 1937) in the background. The artist emphasizes an atmospheric vision, where light and textural effects dominate; the vast sky occupies more than half of the composition and casts a soft light that reflects off the calm surface of the Seine. The reflections, rendered with fine horizontal brushstrokes, delicately bring the water to life.
