Description

A fine and collectible Bohemian glass tea set, attributed to Moser, Karlsbad, c. 1890. The set includes six cobalt blue cups with matching saucers, decorated in raised enamel and fine gilding. The floral and foliate ornamentation is typical of Moser's late 19th-century production, executed with precision and artistic refinement.

The glass has been expertly wheel-cut, polished, and finished with gold and coloured enamel in relief, a technique strongly associated with Moser's output for royal households and international exhibitions. The workshop received numerous awards, including Vienna (1873), Paris (1889), and Chicago (1893). The set's quality and sculptural detailing distinguish it even among luxury Venetian wares.

Similar examples are preserved in museum collections, including the Corning Museum of Glass, the Victoria and Albert Museum, the Museum of Decorative Arts in Berlin, and the Kunsthistorisches Museum in Vienna.

Moser supplied his luxurious glassware to numerous royal courts, including those of the Austro-Hungarian Empire, the Ottoman Sultan, the Shah of Persia, and the British royal family.
