Description

Elegant carved wooden console table with its old patina, typical of the Louis XVI style, early 19th century (circa 1800-1820). It rests on four tapered and fluted legs ending in connecting dice decorated with carved flowers. The belt has a refined decoration of rosettes and openwork garlands, as well as a central applique motif. The top, probably an old addition, in wood painted in imitation black marble with golden brown veins, made in the 19th century. This marbling gives the whole a very elegant decorative presence. Good condition. Old patina.
