Description

Elegant covered pot forming a vase from the 18th century in Delft earthenware. It rests on an octagonal base topped with a baluster shaft decorated with a bucolic scene. This scene represents a character sitting at the foot of a tree against a village background, the whole in a coat of arms formed of volutes, flowers and foliage in blue. The whole is topped with a lid finished with an acanthus leaf. Quality work in relatively good condition, some scratches visible in the photos.
