Description

- Pair of wall lights with flower decoration in gilded wrought iron, Italian work from the last quarter of the 18th century. Each wall light consists of two twisted light arms that escape from a sheath support covered with two superimposed acanthus leaves. The borrowings from the ornamental vocabulary of plants continue with a garland of closed flowers hanging on each arm, the falls of blooming flowers, the leafy bobeche or even the bouquet of flowers finishing the shaft. - Good condition -
