Description

Portrait of a Gentleman Italian School, second half of the 19th century Oil on canvas - 64 × 84 cm Unframed, original stretcher A male portrait of remarkable psychological depth, painted in the second half of the 19th century. The sitter, a gentleman with marked features and an intense gaze, is shown with arms crossed and a contemplative expression. The background, dark but vibrant, features subtle tones of blue and brown. The painting shows good pictorial quality, especially in the rendering of the face and the interplay of light on the clothing, with a refined yet restrained palette. Condition report: the work is in critical condition. There are numerous tears and breaks, signs of prolonged and careless handling. There are also rudimentary restoration attempts, likely amateur, with patches applied on
