Description

ATTENDU Antoine Ferdinand 1845-1927 Still life painter. Encouraged by an attentive teacher, he joined the École des Beaux-Arts in Lyon, where he trained in the classical techniques of academic drawing and oil painting. He exhibited regularly at the Paris Salon from 1870 to 1905. He presented 6 of his paintings at the first Impressionist exhibition at Nadar in 1874. While his work includes scenes of daily life and rural landscapes, the painter stands out above all as a specialist in still life. He displays a remarkable sense of detail and composition, combined with a subtle work of shadows and lights that highlights the different textures and nuances of the fruits.
