Description

Corinna Modigliani Portrait of a young girl Rome 1904 oil painting on canvas depicting an elegantly dressed little girl in a white and blue half-sleeved dress, white slippers, and light blue stockings. The child is full-length portrayed standing in the quiet of domestic life in a garden in front of a low wall. The charm of this painting from the Roman area of the early twentieth century is linked precisely to the dreamy gaze of the fan-fanned maiden and a skillful technique in the use of color. Oil colors are here treated using a very delicate drafting that gives us a balanced and harmonious composition, where the green and dark tones of the background contrast with the vaporous and luminous light of the elegant dress. The painting bears the signature at lower left Corinna Modigliani Rome 1904, comes from
