Description

Elegant 18th century oil on canvas, attributable to the circle of François Boucher, depicting Venus, goddess of love and beauty, accompanied by Cupid (Amore). Seated on clouds, crowned with flowers, she holds a mirror, symbol of coquetry and divine beauty. Cupid, at her side, offers her a floral garland. A laurel wreath rests in the foreground, accentuating the allegorical character of the scene. The composition, pastel tones, delicate modeling and gentle sensuality of the subject are characteristic of the style of Boucher and his workshop, emblematic of the French Rococo. - 18th century canvas, relined - Original gilded wood frame decorated with pearls
