Description

A beautiful pair of wooden stands, adorned with bronze details, which appear to be early 20th-century work. These pieces, likely brought back from Egypt, are of a very luxurious design and reflect refined craftsmanship. The stands are large, with a height of 118 cm and a width of 51 cm. The wood used is a high-quality veneer, which adds to the elegance and sophistication of these pieces. The bronze ornaments are particularly noteworthy, with intricate details and motifs reminiscent of classical and perhaps even pharaonic styles, given their Egyptian origin. The armrests of the stands are richly decorated with motifs of leaves and winged figures, suggesting an artistic influence inspired by mythological or historical elements. The legs of the stands are also ornate, with bronze details extending to the bottom, adding a touch of luxury and sturdiness to the structure. The state of preservation of the stands is good, although some signs of wear can be observed, which is normal for pieces from this period. The bronze details are well preserved, and the wood shows a patina that adds to their antique charm. These stands are not only functional pieces of furniture, but also works of art that demonstrate the craftsmanship of their time. Their design and construction reflect a careful attention to detail and a search for aesthetics that transcend their practical utility. In conclusion, these wood and bronze stands are remarkable pieces that combine functionality and artistry. Their imposing size, ornate details, and likely history make them highly sought-after collectibles for lovers of antiques and antique furniture. Their presence in a space dedicated to antiques underlines their value and importance as historical and artistic pieces. MORE PHOTOS BY FOLLOWING THIS LINK:
