This mirror is a superb Louis XIII style piece, crafted from carved wood and gilded with gold leaf. It is a true statement piece, perfect for refined and sophisticated decor. The original mercury mirror has an elegant bevel that captures and reflects the light with subtle shimmers. These reflections are visible in the photos and add a touch of magic to the room. The frame, entirely handcrafted, is richly decorated with delicate garlands of leaves. There are also finely carved shells, demonstrating exceptional craftsmanship. The openwork structure of the frame gives a great visual lightness to the whole. The imposing pediment, adorned with shells in relief, reinforces the majestic allure of the mirror. This style is typically Louis XIII, recalling the opulence and splendor of this era. This mirror, dating from the 19th century, is a carefully crafted piece resting on a parquet floor. This construction ensures good stability, essential for a piece of this size. Overall, the mirror is in very good condition for its age, which is remarkable. There are only a few small jumps in the gilding and a few areas where the plate appears slightly. These details, visible in the photos provided, only add to the charm and authenticity of the piece. The marks of time, far from depreciating the object, give it a unique and precious patina. Its generous dimensions, with a height of 130 cm, a width of 92 cm and a depth of 10 cm, make it an ideal mirror to dress a wall. It can perfectly find its place in a living room, a dining room or an entrance hall. This mirror combines elegance, history and craftsmanship, making it a rare and sought-after piece. It will bring an undeniable cachet to any classic or eclectic interior. Acquiring such a piece is an investment in art and history, a way to add a touch of timeless elegance to your decor. This mirror is not only a utilitarian object, but also a work of art in its own right. It demonstrates the talent and creativity of the craftsmen of the time, capable of transforming an everyday object into a collector's item. In short, this Louis XIII mirror is an exceptional piece that will appeal to art lovers and collectors. It is perfect for those looking to add a touch of sophistication and history to their home. This mirror is a true invitation to travel back in time, to discover the art and culture of the 19th century. It is a testimony of the past, a window open on history and timeless beauty.
