Description

This beautiful Louis XIV writing table is made of fruitwood except for the drawer that opens in the belt which is made of oak, it rests on four turned baluster uprights ending in balls, they are connected to each other by an H-shaped spacer which is also turned. The color of its patina is warm, its wood chosen most certainly with care by the carpenter who made it is of quality, this has allowed this table to age well and to reach us in an excellent state of conservation. Some small restorations are to be noted. Period late 17th or early 18th century. Dimensions: Top 96 cm x 70 cm, height 70 cm.
