Description

Bird's eye view map of Paris drawn by Georges Peltier between 1920 and 1940, inspired by the famous map of Louis Bretez known as "Turgot's map" from 1739. Paris is represented from a bird's eye view, with all the buildings and monuments shown in perspective and elevation: Eiffel Tower, Arc de Triomphe, Notre Dame... The map is surrounded by a wooden frame and protected by a glass pane, the back is closed by a plywood panel. In very good condition, note some small, barely visible stains on the edge, related to time. Dimensions without frame: 70x99.5 cm Delivery possible, quote on request.
