Description

A refined French display cabinet from the 1930s, characteristic of the clean, geometric elegance of the Art Deco era. This vertical piece combines decorative function with practical storage in a compact and architectural form.

Crafted in richly toned solid wood, the cabinet features drawer fronts veneered in dark wood--likely rosewood or walnut--enhanced by geometric, polished metal knobs. The display section is framed with a fine chromed aluminum border and fitted with its original glass panels and two interior glass shelves, supported by subtle brass brackets.

Topped with a luxurious black marble slab veined in white, the cabinet gains an elevated, sculptural presence. The glass door opens with a working lock and original key, while a discreet built-in light softly illuminates the contents inside.

Below the glass compartment are three practical drawers, blending functionality with harmony of form. With its height of 134 cm, the cabinet may also serve as a plinth for a sculpture or as an elegant plant stand.

An authentic Art Deco piece, preserved in excellent condition--perfect for collectors, interior designers, or high-end retail displays.
