Description

This hand-tufted wool rug, designed by Jean-Jacques Beaumé, celebrates the decorative arts of the 1930s. Its natural shades of beige evoke an era when the alliance between design and craftsmanship gave rise to timeless creations. Each component of this meticulously crafted rug reveals meticulous selection, from the juxtapositions of warm hues to the patterns that punctuate its surface. The inspiration behind Silva seems to stem from the great masters of the Art Deco era, enhanced with a contemporary touch, making it an ideal choice for modern spaces. It is not simply a rug, but rather a work of art capable of transforming an environment by adding a touch of elegance and warmth. The use of premium wool for hand-tufting gives Silva a soft and luxurious texture while ensuring its durability. This is a rug designed to last, to be admired and appreciated for years to come. In short, Silva skillfully blends past and present, creating a rug that pays homage to history while firmly positioning itself in the modern era. It demonstrates that classic design, when interpreted with skill and passion, retains its undeniable place in the contemporary world. Dimensions: 350x250 cm Condition: Used, with several stains in the beige center of the rug and a small loss of wool on the edge (all visible in the photos). Overall, it remains a beautiful decorative piece. *Video available upon request *PRICE REDUCED (no returns possible) Delivery upon request.
